Death of Elias Howe, the Inventor of the Sewing Machine

The telegraph brings us the report of the death at Brooklyn, New York, on the night of the 2d inst, of Elias Howe, Jr, the inventor and original patantee of the sewing machine This invention is recognized as second in importance, as an assistant to human labor, to nothing which has ever been perfected by human ingenuity, and the name of Elias Howe, Jr, already occupies a place in the world's esteem equal with Watt, Fulton, Morse and Daguerre The Atlantic Monthly, of May 1867, contains a brief "History of the Sewing Machine" from the pen of James Parton, and we cannot employ our columns in a better manner than by condensing some of the statements contained therein, inasmuch by so doing we can remind our readers of some of the more interesting facts in Mr Howe's history.

We learn from this history that "Elias Howe, the inventor of the sewing machine, was born in 1819 at Spencer, in Massachusetts where his father was a farmer and miller" We also learn that his parents and kinsfolk were all poor and that Elias, when quite a young man, was employed as an apprentice in the shop of one Ari Davis, a nautical instrument maker, whose shop was in Cornhill, Boston It was while there that Howe first heard the suggestion of a machines for sewing This was in 1839 After coming over the idea (which seems to have taken complete possession of his mind) he succeeded in studying out the needle with the eye in the point and then his great work was virtually accomplished. Says Mr Parton

"One day, in 1844, the thought flashed upon him is it necessary that a machine should imitate the performance of the hand? May there not be another stitch? This was the crisis of the invention The idea of using three threads and forming a stitch by the aid of a shuttle and a curved needle with the eye near the point, soon occurred to him, and he felt that he had invented a sewing machine It was in the month of October, 1844, that he was able to convince himself, by a rough model of wood and wire, that such a machine that he had projected would sew."

At this time he was as poor as ever "and, with an invention in his head that has since given him more than two hundred thousand dollars in a single year, and which is now yielding a profit to more than one firm of a thousand dollars a day, he could scarcely provide for his little family the necessaries of life." So circumstanced, he had not, of course, the requisite means to get a machine made to test the virtues of the invention. He finally got his friend, George Fisher, of Cambridge, to advance him money enough to purchase the requisite materials with; and he went to work in the garrett of Fisher's house and made a machine, which, so far as the principle upon which all sewing machines are worked, was entirely perfect. Says the historian

"It is agreed by all disinterested persons (Professor Renwick among others) who have examined this machine, that Elias Howe, in making it, carried the invention of the sewing machine farther on towards its complete and final utility, than any other inventor has ever brought a first-rate invention at the first trial. It is a little thing, that first machine, which goes into a box in the capacity of about a cubic foot and a half. Every contrivance it has been since improved, and few decent hoes have been added, but no successful sewing machine has ever been made, of all the seven hundred thousand now in existence, which does not contain some of the essential devices of this first attempt. We make this assertion without hesitation or reserve, because it is, we believe, the one point upon which all the great makers are agreed. Judicial decisions have repeatedly affirmed it.

But to invent is one thing, it is another, and an entirely different one to get inventions before the public and induce their general acceptance. Mr Howe set his machine at work in the Quincy Hall Clothing Manufactory in Boston, and sewed five seams faster than five of the smartest girls could do the same amount of work; but the tailors, although they admitted that "the work done on the machine was the neatest and the strongest" gave it no employment nor its inventor any encouragement. But Howe set himself at work again with a brave heart, in Fisher's garrett, and finished the model which finally ensured his reward. By his friends' help he went to Washington and got that model patented. That patent dates September 10, 1846. Finding no market for his invention in the United States, Howe took passage in the steerage of a sailing packet and went to England In Cheapside, London, he found one William Thomas, a manufacturer of corsets, umbrellas, &c. This man, who employed five thousand persons in making his wares, had faith enough in the contrivance to invest in it Howe sold his machine for two hundred and fifty pounds sterling Thomas also made a verbal agreement, which he never kept, to pay him three pounds for every machine sold, provided it should ever come into general use. Thomas patented the invention himself, and thenceforth received a bounty of ten pounds or less for every machine made in or imported into England. Howe then made a contract to adopt the machine to stay making at three pounds a week! Thomas, when Howe's work had been completed understood to assume the airs of "master" and Howe's Yankee blood being too warm for that sort of thing, he two parted, and the poor inventor was left to shift for himself and family in that vast human wilderness, the city of London. Finally, after many hardships, and after having got his wife and children sent to his native land, Howe pawned his model and letters patent and raised money enough to take him back to Yankeedom. He got to New York with a half crown in his pocket, in April, 1849. His wife died about this time, and he was obliged to borrow a suit of clothes in which to make a decent appearance at her funeral.

He discovered at this time that a "Yankee sewing mach ne" to which was ascribed certain wonderful powers, was being exhibited about the country as a curiosity at so much a sight. He also discovered that certain manufacturers were making sewing machines which contained the devices he had patented. Managing to raise a hundred dollars, he got his machine and letters patent "out of soak" from London and, after many delays, began that process of litigation which at last insured him the remuneration which his genius was entitled to. He got some gentlemen to buy out George Fisher's share in the patent. Fisher was discouraged, as well he might be Howe went to work with renewed energy, in a shop in New York, and made several machines which finally found customers While this was going on, Isaac Merritt Singer, a broken down actor and bankrupt manager of small theaters, the man whose name is mentioned in the "Singer Sewing Machine Company," made a machine which like to have broken Howe's fortune and robbed him of the fruits of his invention Then followed that great suit which settled the question in Howe's favor. It was proven that he alone was the originator of the principle which made machine sewing practicable. On this point Mr. Parton says.

And thus the courts have uniformly held. In the year 1854, after a long trial, Judge Sprague, of Massachusetts, decided that "the plaintiff's patent is valid, and the defendant's machine is an infringement" The plaintiff is Elias Howe, the real infringer I. M. Singer. Judge Sprague further observed, that "there is no evidence in this case, that leaves a shadow of doubt that, for all the benefit conferred upon the public by the introduction of a sewing machine, the public are indebted to Mr Howe."

This decision decided the matter About this time Howe's partner died, and the inventor was enabled to possess himself of the entire ownership of the patent, so unproductive had it become in 1854—thirteen years ago! But about this time it began to pay, and Howe's income began to increase from a few hundreds a year to hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is computed that he had received at the expiration of the extension of the patent, namely, on September 10, 1867, about two millions of dollars This, we suppose, is exclusive of the tribute, which by contract (the result of a final compromise of a law suit between him and the members of the present sewing machine combination) is paid to him by all the manufacturers of sewing machines in the United States This tribute at the time of Howe's death was one dollar for every machine made

The magazine article from which we have made these extracts and condensed these facts is full of matter of deep interest, and it should be read by everybody But while it is a history of the sewing machine it could not be such without also being a history of all that is most interesting in the life and adventures of this man whose inventive genius has been acckowledged throughout the civilized world, from the poor seamstress who has gained health and better employment by its use, to the haughty Emperor who made Elias Howe a King of the Legion of Honor.—Carson Appeal.

A QUEER SORT OF RELIGION.—A correspondent gives a brief account of a curious religious order in Mexico, called the "Pretuntists"

This Order, with its curious customs, has been handed down through the old Franciscan Friars of Spain. Every Friday during Lent, and the whole of the last week, they go through this penance An indefinite number, generally from twenty-five to fifty, divest themselves of all superfluous clothing, excepting a pair of drawers rolled up to the knee, and a red handkerchief around the head. Officers are elected (who do not disrobe themselves) all furnished with a peculiar kind of whip, made very pliable, except those who hold the post of honor, to the number of five or six, who carry a large, heavy cross, hewn out of rough timber, which is so heavy and unwieldy that when the cross is upon the shoulder, the long upright piece drags upon the ground. All leave their place of resort singing a melancholy sort of chant, and going to a certain place where a large cross is firmly planted in the ground, they drop upon their knees in a circle round the cross, then begin to beat themselves alternately over each shoulder, according as they think their sins deserve The whip strikes in the small of the back, keeping time to the chant, while shuffling around the circle The cross bearers, who have their hands full, are kindly provided for by the officers, who take it upon themselves to whip those who have not the ability to whip themselves. Their backs, as we saw them, resembled a mass of raw flesh with the blood not trickling from one place, but hundreds The blows could be heard for full half a mile, filling the by-stander with indescribable horror, while the cold chills run over his frame in thinking how it is possible for human beings to be so ignorant and degraded as to do this. The penance is over with the last of Lent.

LEGEND OF THE WANDERING JEW.—The original name of the Wandering Jew was Calaphilus, Pontius Pilot's porter. When they were dragging Jesus out of the door of judgment hall, he struck him on the back, saying, "Go faster, Jesus! go faster, why dost thou linger?" Upon which Jesus looked upon him with a frown, and said, "I am indeed going, but thou shalt tarry till I come." Soon after he was converted, and took the name of Joseph. He lives forever, but every hundred years falls into a trance, upon which, when he recovers, he returns to the same state of youth he was in when our Savior suffered—being about thirty years of age. He always preserves the utmost gravity of deportment. He was never seen to smile He perfectly remembers the death and resurrection of Christ. From the year eighteen hundred and eighteen (perhaps earlier) to about eighteen hundred and thirty, a handsomely-featured Jew, in semi eastern costume, fair-haired, bare headed, his eyes intently fixed on a little ancient book he held in both hands, might be seen gliding through the streets of London, but was not seen to issue from nor to enter a house, nor to pause upon his way. He was popularly known as "The Wandering Jew," but there was something so dignified and anxious in his look that he was never known to suffer the slightest molestation Young and old looked silently on him as he passed, and shook their heads pitifully when he had gone by. He disappeared; was seen again in London some ten years later, still young, fair-haired, bare headed, his eyes bent on his book, his feet going steadily forward as he went straight on, and soon again whispered, as he glided through the streets for the last time, "The Wandering Jew!" There were many who believed that he was the very man to whom had been uttered the awful words, "Tarry till I come!"

A DIAMOND MAN.—The Duke of Brunswick, of diamond notoriety, has a rival, not only in eccentricity, but likewise in the extent of his collection of precious stones. M. Negroin is the name of this happy individual. He lately called on M. Yver, a well known notary, and requested of him to look out for a Parisian hotel, the price of which was not to exceed £16,000. M. Yver, having found a hotel which suited the great man's fancy, proceeded to make out the deed of sale. On the day fixed for payment, the man of law was somewhat startled by receiving a handful of diamonds instead of the gold pieces he was accustomed to. "What difference can it make?" said the nabob. "Send for an expert—he will tell you that the stones are of the purest water. I will deposit for the value of a million, if you wish, at the bank, in order that he may select those that he prefers." The verification took place, the diamonds were acknowledged to be of the purest water, and thus the bargain was concluded A few days after this curious transaction, M. Negroin called on M. Yver, and begged him to purchase a country house for him, within a few miles of Paris. There were to be gardens, hot houses, a park, etc. The price was to vary from £25,000 to £30,000. "Will you pay for this estate in diamonds, sir?" "Certainly, said M. Negroin. "I possess several millions' worth. I do not wish to dispose of them just now, because there is a fall in their price both in the Paris and London markets, but those who receive these stones in payment are fortunate, for their value is greater than their current price."

SOMMER'S WARNING.—The prophetic warning of Charles Sumner, when he besought Congress not to adjourn beyond the summer months, is fast becoming history. He said

"Because we have the successor of Jefferson Davis in the Presidential chair, therefore Congress must stay. That is my argument in a nutshell. A volume or an oration could not make it plainer than it is when I simply state it. There are your generals, who, as soon as you are gone, may be his victims. The telegraph may flash to you in the comfort of your homes, that the gall

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 28, 1867.

A Clear Distinction.

The Herald having learned that the Supreme Court of the United States has in repeated instances during the last fifty years decided that Government securities cannot be taxed by States abandons its former position on the subject, and restates the case as follows

The OREGONIAN has taken refuge in the decisions of the Supreme Court against the taxing of Government securities The question of fact which he has occupied columns of the OREGONIAN for the past week or more in proving, is not in controversy. The question of principle, which the editor scrupulously ignores, is, as to whether a decision of the Supreme Court is a finality from which there is no appeal and equally binding upon all parties.

The question of fact, as to whether the Supreme Court had ever decided this matter, was the very point which was at first in controversy. The Herald denied, or at least strongly doubted, whether any decisions of the kind had ever been made. We affirmed that the decisions on the subject were numerous, and set out to establish that fact. After we had shown that the question had been decided several times by Chief Justice Marshall and his associates, the Herald affirmed that the decisions were practically obsolete because Marshall was a Federalist and had based the exemption of Government bonds from State taxation on an implied power in the Constitution,—an erroneous interpretation of instrument; and for the further alleged reason that the people had by an overwhelming majority repudiated this doctrine of the Supreme Court when General Jackson was elected President. Thus down to last Saturday the editor held that the question as to whether Government securities could be taxed, had never been definitely settled by the Supreme Court. We then showed that the question had been repeatedly decided by a Democratic Supreme Court since 1862 and that, whatever Gen. Jackson might have said, the opinions of Marshall were based on a correct view of the Constitution. We thus succeeded in extorting from the Herald an admission that the Supreme Court has decided the question, and that, by the judgments of that tribunal, Government securities are not taxable. It admits the fact of the decisions, but, changing front, now declares that this is not the question in controversy. The real question is whether the decisions of the Supreme Court are a finality. At the offstart, the question was whether the Court had ever passed upon the subject at all. After we had cited from the opinions of Marshall and established the fact that the question had been decided by him, the subject took a new phase. The question then was whether the doctrines of those decisions had become obsolete, or whether they are still in force as good law. We showed that those doctrines had had been specially reaffirmed by Chief Justice Taney and a Democratic Supreme Court in 1862, and on several occasion since. And now the question is whether these numerous decisions are to be accepted as final. Are they binding upon all parties, or may any State or corporation disregard them? These are the positions which the Herald has successively held in reference to this question. What turn that paper will take next, it would be hazardous to conjecture.

The subject now assumes the form of a question whether States or corporations under them may lawfully and rightfully do an act which the Supreme Court has, on so many occasions, pronounced unconstitutional. The Democratic party affirms that they may. It affirms that they have a right to tax bonds in defiance of the Constitution as expounded by the proper authority, because it is alleged that the opposite party has heretofore refused to acquiesce in the decisions of the Supreme Court. For instance, the Fugitive Slave law was pronounced constitutional; yet the Republicans opposed it and sought its repeal. Therefore the Democrats are now justifiable in insisting on the taxation of bonds notwithstanding the Court has declared the act unconstitutional. The point of this argument, so far as its point is discoverable, is this: The Republicans are accused of doing what the Democrats denounced as wrong; therefore because the Republicans did this, the Democrats may now, when it suits their pleasure, do a like wrongful act. If we concede that the charge against the Republican party is true, the only argument the Democrats can make out of it is that they are entitled to do what they have ever held as wrong because somebody else at a former time had done a thing equally wrongful. That is the whole argument. There is no need to apply the principles of casuistry to such an argument to determine its validity. It destroys itself.

But this is not the real question. There is a broad distinction between opposing and endeavoring to repeal an act which the Supreme Court has pronounced constitutional, and attempting to do a thing which that tribunal has not merely once but many times declared unconstitutional. We admit that the Republican party did not like the Fugitive Slave law, and that it repealed the act even though its constitutionality had been affirmed by the Supreme Court. It was constitutional to have such a law, and it was constitutional not to have it. So it was constitutional to have a national bank and it was constitutional not to have it. The Democrats opposed the bank though the Court had declared it constitutional, repealed the act creating it and destroyed the institution. This they had a right to do. The Alien and Sedition laws were also pronounced constitutional, yet the Democrats opposed them more violently than the Republicans ever opposed the Fugitive Slave law. A law may be constitutional and yet inexpedient. Such were the Alien and Sedition laws just mentioned. The tariff is constitutional, and yet the Democrats are constantly laboring for its destruction. No one questions their right to do this. So in opposing the Fugitive Slave law and kindred enactments, even though they had been pronounced constitutional, the Republicans did no wrong Because an act has been declared constitutional by the Supreme Court, parties are not thereby precluded from seeking its repeal. But when the highest tribunal pronounces an act unconstitutional, the case is altered. When it is decided that an act is violation of the Constitution, such decision is conclusive and final. Especially is this so, if the decisions on the subject have been frequently repeated. There is the greatest difference between an attempt to do an act which has already been pronounced unconstitutional, and an attempt to repeal an act which though constitutional, a portion of the people may think unwise and inexpedient. The first cannot be done without overthrowing the Constitution itself; the last may be done at the pleasure of a majority of the people. This is the difference between what the Democrats propose to do now in reference to the taxation of bonds, and what the Republicans did in reference to the Fugitive Slave law. We may oppose a constitutional law if we see proper, but we cannot insist on doing an unconstitutional act. This is a distinction which needs no argument to make it clear. Republicans and Democrats have alike opposed acts which the Supreme Court has declared constitutional; but none except Democrats have ever seriously attempted to do a thing which the same tribunal has repeatedly declared to be violative of the fundamental law Decisions in such cases are a finality, and there is no appeal from them except by amendment of the Constitution.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 25.—New York telegrams of Wednesday quote flour steady at $13 50.

Wheat—California wheat at $3 10@3 16; a decline of 10 cents in four days. The quotation for flour evidently refers to that off condition, as there is but little if any choice California in that market California wheat was quoted in Liverpool on Tuesday at 10s; on Wednesday at 10s 9d The latter being about equal to $3 78 @ 100 lbs. The quotation of 17s in that market on the 16th inst, it will be remembered was doubted at the time, and these later quotations indicate that such doubts were well grounded.

HIGHLY DEMOCRATIC B. H. Harris of Maryland, an ex Congressman of that State and a thorough and consistent Democrat, has written a letter declaring that slavery has not been legitimately abolished He says:

"The institution of slavery, in theory at least, still exists, and it does not become our State to utter a word against the theory, when she reflects by what arts of the tyrant and the rubber our people have been practically deprived of their rights in this respect. The theft of property does not destroy the title of the owner Besides, if this amendment could be constitutionally made, what becomes of our claim for compensation for the slaves of which the United States deprived us or converted to their own use? If slavery is dead, practically, by the ruthless, thieving hands of our enemies, why should we intimate, by the adoption of this clause, a sanction of this outrage upon the constitutional rights of our people?"

Mr. Harris makes it clear that he hopes for the restoration of slavery, and through the return of the democratic party to power, either by fair means or by force, for he says:—

"If we count from the Rio Grande to Canada, there are a million of men majority over the radicals, who, notwithstanding, have been ingenious enough by military law, enfranchisement of the negro, and disfranchisement of the white race, to retain to their minority the power to govern this entire country according to their own tyrannical views. This should not continue; the great interests of our people (both present and future generations) demand that it should stop. We must restore the democratic party to power, 'peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must.' I should greatly regret to find the resort to force necessary to accomplish this great salvation, but how can it be avoided, when by force alone our enemies are inaugurating the greatest outrages upon the fundamental principles which our forefathers, as they thought, firmly established for our country?"

Mr. Harris proceeds to reproach the Democrats of the North with cowardice, tells them that they did not wish the success of the war against the South, but shrieked for the Union in order to gain power, and says:

"Had they been true and steadfast to the principles of the party, the Union, though then dissolved by secession, would this day be greatly nearer reconstruction, by the peaceful assent of the whole people, without the shedding of a single drop of American blood, than it is now, after blood has run like water, and when the not of reconstruction is but the mere devilment of a few cowardly tyrants. A disunion of hearts can never be anything but an unsafe basis for a union of States."

A resident of Washington City who was present on the occasion of the late ceremonies at the battle ground of Antietam, and who heard the oration of ex-Gov Bradford of Maryland, and also the brief address of acting President Johnson, writes the following which we find in the Detroit Tribune: "Bradford's oration was but an elaborate apology for the soldiers of the Union who fought and fell upon that field. The orator was strictly neutral in regard to the great moral and civil issues suggested by the mute eloquence of the five thousand patriot graves that lay beneath his eye. His silence upon this point was doubtless enjoined by courtesy, as he was surrounded by a score of Maryland officers dressed in full Confederate uniform. The only reflection made by the Chief Magistrate of the nation in regard to the merits and virtues of the men who composed the contending forces on the battle field of Antietam was that 'they were equally brave.' A strange moral to extract from an event so momentous that it shook the very pillars of the republic, and consigned more than five thousand of its defenders to bloody graves! Johnson and his friends, however, desired to avoid all that was partisan on that solemn occasion, and they consider any denunciation of treason as a badge of party."

The editor of Macon (Ga) Journal is sighing for the good old days of chivalry. He has got possession of a political tract, printed at Washington and circulated through the South, which he pronounces an "incendiary document," and proceeds to talk of in the old fashioned style. Hear his lamentation

The day, alas! has gone by when we could punish such crimes as they deserved. A stout rope and a short shrift was an antidote that never failed to destroy the virus. As it is, we must now meet the pestilence with such weapons as the fortunes of war and the cowardly malignity of the common enemy have left us.

What a pity it is that men can't be hanged at the South now without judge or jury! What a pity that men are now protected in their right to speak and print what they please! What an outrage that political documents can be circulated without consulting the chivalry! What is to become of the liberties of the people? Alas! for the good old days of pro slavery Democratic ascendency, now hopelessly gone, when a "stout rope" was all that was needed to silence a political opponent Behold what the liberty-destroying "mongrels" have done!

INSURANCE.—They insure everything in Hartford, Connecticut, from your own life to that of your dog, or the steam-boiler that heats your house. Apropos of the recent rainy season in that vicinity one of the Insurance Presidents was asked, "Why don't you start a company to insure against a deluge?" "That was the first charter ever granted," was the quick reply.

VIEWS OF GEN. SHERIDAN.—A dispatch from Philadelphia gives the following report of remarks made by Gen. Sheridan in the cars between Washington and Baltimore:

On the cars, coming from Baltimore, General Sheridan spoke as follows upon the vital subject of the hour:

"The reconstruction acts of Congress are the only measures calculated to benefit the people of the Southern States. All my acts while in command of the Department of the Mississippi and Louisiana were not only fully endorsed by Gen Grant, but in reality might be considered the execution of Grant's own orders If the first letter written by General Grant to President Johnson, regarding my removal, was to be made public, the people of the North would be astonished at its Radical tone, and when it is published the people will find that he (Grant) is Radical to the core. As far as Radicalism is concerned, Gen Grant is more so than I am, and in several instances I have written to him to modify the instructions sent me, as being too severe to suit the occasion for which they were intended."

The General spoke freely and unreservedly during the passage of the cars from Washington to Baltimore on the prominent topics of the day, and his views of reconstruction are of the most radical stamp When near the city, Sheridan remarked

"If the rebels got into power through the policy of Andrew Johnson, then the rebellion becomes honorable, and loyalty and Unionism dishonorable, and, after having sacrificed so many lives in the suppression of the rebellion, I am in favor of depriving them of their power by giving the colored Union men the right of franchise."

THE DANGER.—The Sacramento Union sounds the warning as follows:

Let any man ask himself whether he feels as ready to invest in United States bonds to day as he did before the partial victories which have encouraged the Democratic party to hope for another lease of power. Let him who complains of taxation ask himself what means the confirmation by 20,000 majority of the new Constitution of Maryland, which demands, as a right, compensation for slaves It signifies that returned rebel soldiers now rule that State and Kentucky because negro suffrage was rejected by the Unionists. Had not this grievous and perhaps fatal mistake been committed, we should not hear of a Maryland militia threatening to overawe and disperse Congress and inaugurate another rebellion in the city of Washington itself. There is danger. Let the Republican party recognize it and whence it comes.

MR. ODELL'S SURVEYING PARTY.—Mr. J. H. Smith, formerly an officer in the Washington Territory regiment of Infantry and lately in charge of a quartermaster's pack train accompanying the escort to the Odell surveying party, arrived at this city Thursday evening by the Dalles boat. His relation of the incidents connected with Mr Odell's late expedition is interesting. It will be recollected that last year the work of surveying a meridian line from the Columbia, southward was partially accomplished, the work ending at a point about twenty miles south-west of Cedar mountain in Eastern Oregon. Mr. Odell having received authority from Gen Steele to call on commanders of posts for escorts to protect the surveying party of the season, procured an escort of one sergeant and fourteen soldiers from the camp on Malheur and started on the 17th of September, the party consisting of the escort, Mr Odell and four assistants, Mr. Smith and three packers From the camp on Malheur to the point where the survey of the preceding year terminated, the distance is 65 miles. When they reached this point, they found some fresh Indian signs and the country seemed to be full of fires, the smoke of which was very dense The direction first taken was south and then east to the Three Forks of Owyhee. While in this region, on the 15th the party encountered a storm of snow and hail, preceded by three or four days of rain. This was near the mouth of December. The party reached the Ohico route at a point five miles south of Rattlesnake Point Here they met the Humboldt stage with twelve passengers At Rattlesnake Point there are four soldiers stationed for protection to the stage road. The party had no experience worth almost a romantic adventure with a noted horse thief, who was in custody of a sheriff and who escaped from him and afterwards was brought into the camp of the escort. From Rattlesnake Point, the party proceeded by way of Camp Whitbrop to Boonville, where the escort left Mr. Odell's party and proceeded to Camp Lyon, and reported to the officer in command. The soldiers being a detachment from that post, were detained there The rest of the forces being mostly all in the field, the commanding officer did not deem it expedient or safe to spare an escort to the surveying party, and Mr Odell was thus left at Boonville on the 27th of September, without the necessary force to continue his survey, and it is probable that the work cannot proceed any further this season The length of the line surveyed is about one hundred miles Mr Odell at last accounts was remaining at Boonville in hopes of procuring an escort.

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—The subjoined items are from the Vancouver Register:

The U. S. District Court for the 2d Judicial District of this Territory, commenced its session on Wednesday, His Honor C. E. Hewitt, presiding. There are fifty-six civil cases on the docket and two United States cases. Up to the present writing no business has been done except hearing and disposing of motions. Col. Gates, of Dalles, and A. G. Cock, formerly of Boise City, now of Vancouver were admitted to practice at the bar in this Territory on motion of H. G Struve, Esq. Mr. Works and J. Kostrell applied for admission to practice law, and a committee was appointed for the examination..... The Vancouver seminary closed its second term yesterday. The success so far has been quite equal to the expectations of its friends. The record of the first term shows an average attendance of forty scholars. The term just closed, something over fifty. By invitation of Mr. Nichols, the principal, we spent a few hours in the school on Wednesday last. The recitations, in English grammar, English composition, arithmetic, geology, &c., were interesting and exhibited a good degree of progress..... We are informed that a man named Robert Davis, left his wagon and team at the Dalles, and started about the first of this month, with the intention, as he stated, of going to Portland, and thence to the house of a man six miles, in the country, by the name of, Robinson; Mr. Davis has not been heard of since he left the Dalles It was his intention to return immediately from Portland, to that place, and there harvest some grain which he had of his own money to procure, and take the same across the country to Camp Watson. What has become of him is the question.

WASHINGTONS VS. OCCIDENTALS.—The first game of a match between the Washington and Occidental clubs of Vancouver was played on Wednesday with the following result:

DROWNED.—A man named Joseph Long was drowned at East Portland last evening at about 6 o'clock. He was a fisherman, and lived on a scow. His partner, whose name we did not learn, had seen the old manabout 15 minutes before the probable time of drowning, and after supper went down to call him. Upon reaching the scow, and not finding Mr. Long, he went down along the river bank a short distance and found his lifeless body lying on the beach where the waves had washed it up. The old man had been sick, and it is supposed that falling overboard he was too weak to get out of the water, though he must have been in a shoal place to have been washed ashore by the waves. We learned nothing of his nativity or where he has any relatives in this country. These facts may be elicited by the coroner's inquest.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court yesterday, the case of Thos. Atkinson, charged with feloniously breaking down a gate, was disposed of. The case was tried on Wednesday by a jury who found a verdict of guilty. The defendant moved for a new trial and the motion was argued and submitted. Yesterday, the Recorder denied the motion and rendered judgment on the verdict of the jury, fining the defendant $100 The case, it is said, will be appealed to the Circuit Court

WHEAT.—At the close of the market last evening, wheat stood without change in prices, but dealers had little disposition to buy at all. The news from San Francisco, received at a late hour, indicates a decline in prices, as wheat is lower at Liverpool, and flour lower at New York. The market will probably open here to-day at smaller figures than those ruling heretofore.

FREIGHT FOR VICTORIA.—The steamer Fidelitier sailed for Victoria at five o'clock P M., yesterday, with the following list of freight: 2,000 qr sks flour, 100 sks middlings, 370 sks bran, 64 pkgs mdse, 19 do furniture, 161 bags wheat, 20 pkgs bacon, 18 do butter, 21 do lard, 6 do eggs and 180 boxes apples

PRODUCE FROM BELOW.—The steamer Rescue, from Monticello brought up the following, yesterday. 23 sks wheat, 6 dry hides, 10 gunnies potatoes, 2 coops fowl, 1 gunnie m'dse, 1 sk do, 1 pkg do, 4 boxes do, 1,224 ft lumber, 2 shed logs, 1 bbl sour kraut, 1 sk feathers, 1 pail butter, 15 sks onions, 2 horses.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Thursday, 24th inst., Robert Arthur, son of Richard Arthur, of Washington county, was thrown from a horse and had his collar bone broken, his shoulder dislocated and one of his arms badly crushed Although he is very seriously injured, he will probably not die.

RACES POSTPONED.—In consequence of the rains this week and the lousy condition of the Riverside track, the races announced to begin Thursday were postponed to next week Should the weather clear up, the races will open early in the week. Advance notice will be given.

THE CONCO TROUPE has engaged new talent to appear to-night. An extraordinary bill of amusements, consisting of songs, dancing, negro eccentricities, etc. The screaming farce of The Live Indian will to-night be among the attractions.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per steamer Alert from Oregon City, yesterday, 3 bales mdse, 31 bbl bbls produce, 1,695 qr sks flour, 193 sks bacon, 12 sks dried fruit, 2 cases mdse, 150 boxes apples and 1 bale woolen goods.

TO SAIL.—The steamship Orizimmo will sail at 5 o'clock A. M., on Sunday, the 27th.

ARRIVED.—The Orizimmo arrived at her dock in this city at 3 o'clock yesterday morning The Ranger assisted her off the bar at Woody Island.

BOAT FOR SALEM.—Upon the arrival at Oregon City, of the Alert, a boat will be dispatched for Salem. Alert starts at 6, o'clock.

ROUND THE BOND.—Herman Bros, in order to get their large stock from aboard the steamer Orizimmo signed the bond under protest, and are to-day opening out their stock of clothing on corner of Front and Morrison st

Crop Report from the Department of Agriculture.

The department of Agriculture has just issued its report for August and September, which contains the following statement of the condition of the crops:

The crop tables for August gives the general averages of the several States, made up from approximate estimates of our correspondents, of the quantity of the crop than harvested, as compared with those of 1866, together with the current condition of growing crops at the date of return; while the tables of September pertain chiefly to the state of fall crops in relation to which more definite information will be given in succeeding reports.

Wheat.—From August returns it will be observed there is a uniform reduction in the general average of wheat as compared with the crop of 1866, the figures somewhat lower in a number of the States, which is attributable to a considerable extent to the weather while harvesting, as well as to the fact that in some sections the grain was found to be shriveled and threshed out less to the acre than was anticipated. The leading wheat growing States report the following percentage of increase at the close of the harvest: Ohio, 135 per cent.; Indiana, 50; Michigan, 33; Wisconsin, 17; Minnesota, 25; Illinois, 14; Iowa, 20; Missouri, 40; Kentucky, 34; Virginia, 50, Tennessee, 40; Georgia, 80; Arkansas, 45; New York, 14; and Pennsylvania, 40; while only Kansas and Texas show a falling off from last year, when the crops in those States were very large. The returns due October 1st, will enable us to estimate with a greater degree of accuracy the amount of this great crop for the current year.

Corn—The prospects for a corn crop continue to improve, and if frost holds off the general crop will be a fair one. While a number of the States return low estimates, others, particularly the Southern States, show a marked improvement over the yield of last year. Georgia promises to double her yield of 1866; Alabama reports an increase of 75 per cent; Mississippi, 80; Tennessee, 21; Louisiana, 40; South Carolina, 54; and Arkansas, 100. Ohio falls 30 per cent behind last year, estimating from the condition on the first of September; Indiana, 17; Illinois 14; Kentucky, 26; West Virginia, 15; Virginia, 10.

Cotton.—The cotton crop promised well up to the first instant, when the worms were making their appearance, and much apprehension was then felt in various sections for the safety of the crop. Georgia promises to yield 53 per cent beyond her crop of 1866; South Carolina, 50; Alabama, 42; Mississippi, 34; Arkansas, 18; while Louisiana and Texas show a considerable falling off from last year.

Rye, Barley and Oats exhibit no material change from previous reports, though oats were seriously injured in some sections by the extreme wet weather during the harvest; but generally the crop appears superior to that of last year. Buckwheat shows an average increase, with prospects of a fair crop.

Potatoes are rotting badly in many of the large potato growing States, and the crop will probably fall below the yield of last year.

Apples and Peaches—In a few of the States the apple crop promises well, but in a majority the crop will be from ten to forty per cent. below the crop of 1866. Peaches were much injured by the rains in July and August, and orchards which promised well early in the season, have proved entire failures.

Hay shows an increase. The average will reach from twenty-five to thirty per cent. and above the crop of 1866.

The Wool Clip for 1867 will probably fall from five to ten per cent. short of the crop of last year, attributable to the severe weather of last winter, and the consequent exposure and destruction of a large number of sheep.

It is a real pleasure to us to speak favorably of this article, known almost universally to be a good and safe remedy for burns and other pains of the body. It is valuable not only for colds in the winter, but for various summer complaints, and should be in every family. The casualty which demands it may come unawares.—Christian Advocate.

PAIN KILLER, taken internally, should be adulterated with milk or water, and sweetened with sugar, if desired, or made into a syrup with molasses. For a Cough and Bronchitis, a few drops on sugar, eaten, will be more effective than anything else. For Sore Throat, gargle the throat with a mixture of Pain Killer and water and the relief is immediate and cure positive.

WEEKLY REVIEW

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, Oct. 25, 1867.

In consequence of the overland telegraph being down, we have had no gold quotations for several days. The last quotation was 141¼ on the 19th—an advance. Legal tenders were quoted in San Francisco on the 23d at 70½@70¾.

Wholesale trade for the week has been very fair; perhaps not so brisk as for the last few weeks, but nevertheless leaving no room for complaint. Operations in produce have become quiet since the first excitement consequent upon the sudden rise in prices, worn off. Several brands of flour are advanced by the agents here. We quote Standard extra or sks at $7 50; Vaughn's Mills, $7; Albany Steam Mills, $7; Dayton extra, $6 75, do. superfine, $6 25; Mission Mills, $6 75; all of which are advances of 25 to 50c per bbl; other brands unchanged. Wheat has been a little quiet all the week, consequent upon the uncertainty of the markets to which we export. The average is from 90c for red and $1 10 for extra white, with no disposition to purchase largely. The general impression is that the price will settle at about $1 as an average; but this, of course, depends upon the condition of the market at San Francisco. On the 23d, extra lf sks were jobbing in that market at $7 75@8, extra qr sks at $8@8 25. These brands were city mills which rule from 50c to $1 above Oregon extra brands. On the same day, wheat was irregular and ranging from $2 25 to $2 40 for ordinary. These are about the average figures for Oregon wheat. The margin for shipment may be easily ascertained from the following figures: Cost here $1 10 per bushel; cost of sacking in seamless bags, say 15½c, or in chicken gunnies about 10c per bushel; freight, primage and Portland wharfage 10½c per bushel. Cost, placed on the wharf at San Francisco, $1 36½ or $1 38½ according to quality of sacking material, and making no allowance for wastage. The price, $2 40 per 100 lbs, reduced to bushels, is $1 44. The margin, it will be seen, is narrow. The arrivals of grain by teams this week are very inconsiderable as compared with last. The decline in price and the unfavorable turn of the weather both conspire to check the receipts. We have information, however, that very large amounts are going into warehouses along the river banks, awaiting transportation by steamer. Bacon and hams are weaker. We quote sides at 9@10c; hams, 15@18c. We find nothing else in the produce list to change from our last quotations.

The jobbing trade in groceries is still active. In consequence of a liberal demand from the interior and slow arrivals from San Francisco, grocery stocks are a good deal broken. Notwithstanding the decline elsewhere in sugars, the price keeps up here to within a small fraction of last week. The cause of this is that only very light consignments have been received of late and the market is more nearly bare than for months. We quote burning oils easier for the consumer. Salt—there is perhaps not five tons in the market of any description, and the quotation is, therefore, nominal.

There is nothing new to note in hardware beyond a quiet trade. There is a report of an advance in nails, but as it is not yet confirmed, we quote as before.

Dry Goods—the slight stagnation perceptible in the past week's trade as compared with the heavy business of the earlier part of the month, is attributable mostly to the depleted condition of stocks. Clothing, boots and shoes, etc., are in the same category. It is with extreme difficulty the buyers in the city can make their needed selections. A large amount of goods purchased lately could not be got on the last steamer and leading merchants, in consequence, find their stocks altogether inadequate to the demand. The goods by the steamer Orizaba, when received, will relieve buttons in some degree, but not sufficiently to bring it up to the former standard. The detention of that steamer at Woody Island proves a matter of great inconvenience to trade, not only in dry goods but in several other departments. Payments are coming in more freely, if not in large, at least in frequent sums and with great regularity, affording substantial evidence of a healthy trade in the interior.

In general our merchants are anxious for the fall rains to set in so that, with improved navigation, the boats will be able to bring down the large stores of produce which have accumulated along the banks of the rivers. There is general gratification that the season, instead of being a short and brisk one, has proved steady and healthy with indications of a continuance far beyond the usual duration of the fall trade.

We quote the following in relation to wool from the San Francisco Market Review of the 19th, issued by Knapp, Burrell & Co.:

During the period in review there has been a continually declining market, and but few buyers with nerve enough to risk anything on export ventures. Of the shipments made during the past three months, a considerable amount was surplus stock of our local mills; a good deal has gone forward on account, and a small portion in the regular course, taking the entire lot of the coast for the year, it has not met the anticipations entertained in the early spring. The Oregon clip at this market at this year is especially below its average character in past years; most of it has been rather unusually heavy and inclined to tender staple; and the condition in which the Oregon fleeces permitted to leave their hands is wonderful. In some cases it would seem that every thing that ever came out of a sheep has been regarded as a merchantable wool in the fleece. The course pursued by buyers these localities tended to encourage farmers to take this unscrupulous advantage, and it reacts upon them by creating a general distrust of Oregon wools, reducing the price and throwing them to the lowest grade of local mills without competition, they will barely justify serving. These wools are valuable for a variety of uses, and had begun to enjoy a certain reputation which will be destroyed by the condition of the wool marketed this year. There is nothing to encourage any speculation generally in prices of wool at the East, and there has been during the year when shipments made could be sold to cover original cost. The extreme shippers this year will probably make them for a while, and the price of the best will be governed by the local mills almost without opposition. The next moment fall wools are accumulating, and the season closes dull at the following quotations: Oregon—small sales at the inside figure; California—quiet and easy, with small sales; Californian spring, Oct. 1867, 40@45—and filling; Oregon, California, burry, 30@32c.

We are receiving from the financial and commercial circles of Columbia Press of the 19th:

In Portland the week was characterized by the same features that existed at the commencement of last week but as we go to press the market shows a change for the better. Freights have run very light during the week, the boats have brought full cargoes, and as trains are more plentiful than for some previous weeks, especially has this been the case to Salmer's on Grand Ronde and Powder river valleys, who usually depend on getting freight to those points only. The rates of freight rule as before quoted—but shows a tendency favoring the shipper. We observe the unloading of the Lucy Phillips Mining Company, at Yoke, as being stored under thatching, to await transportation either until next spring. The season is too far advanced to start with it now, for such a mountainous country as the South Boise district. The circulation, at quoted rates, of large amounts of legal tenders as prevailing currency here, is a pleasing feature to our business community. While personally we are opposed to any kind of currency other than metallic, we still decidedly approve of the introduction of legal tenders at market rates. Gold dust, as currency, is a nuisance, giving satisfaction to no one, and often causing serious misunderstandings.

The Walla Walla Statesman of the 17th says:

Business of all kinds is looking up, and the complaint of dull times, so common a few weeks back, has ceased. Money is easier and loans are effected at low rates. All the indications are healthy, and the opinion now obtains that having touched the bottom, in future we may calculate upon a lively trade and active demand for our surplus product.

THE ROYAL BALSAM!

HAS NOW BEEN BEFORE THE PUBLIC FOR A length of time, and wherever used is highly recommended, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when timely used; and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction, but, on the contrary, all are delighted with it and speak in the highest terms of its magical effects. The astonishing efficacy of the ROYAL BALSAM, in curing the diseases for which it is recommended entitles it to the highest rank among the list of medicines, and no family can be without it after once trying it.

☞ Read the following testimonials from some of the most prominent citizens of Oregon:

MIRACULOUS CURE.

DR. HENLEY—Dear Sir: I feel it but a duty to inform you and the public what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my wife. She had been afflicted with a severe cough for several weeks, which had assumed a dangerous feature, for which many physicians have been trying without any material benefit, and all the remedies failed to give her any relief. Without relief was got I feared for the worst, in her present condition. The cough appeared to be worse at night, she could get no rest—when Mr. Randall, of this place, advised me to try your Royal Balsam; all other remedies having failed, I concluded to try it, and I purchased two bottles. Strange to say, by the time I gave her three spoonfuls of the Balsam she got restful, and slept, a thing she had not done for three nights previous. By the time she had taken one bottle the cough was checked. Its effect was truly miraculous, as the cure was effectual; hence, I have no hesitation in recommending the Royal Balsam to all who are afflicted, and I appear nothing to the base medicine of such great merit, and I might say magical effect, is not more in use. My candid opinion is, if persons can it once, they never be without it in the house.

Vancouver, March 1, 1867. H. COCHRAN.

From Wm. Doty.

North Yamhill, July 15, 1867.

DEAR DR. HENLEY—It is with sincere gratitude I undertake to write to you, what your Royal Balsam has done for me. For the last 12 years I have been afflicted with a severe cough and what also some of the physicians called the Bronchitis, and have spent a fortune to get cured, trying all the physicians and remedies I could get to no purpose. Through the influence of my neighbors (for you have a great name with them here,) I got a bottle of your Royal Balsam: and finding that it relieved me considerable I sent for a half dozen more. And now after one month using it I am perfectly cured. I gained ten pounds within a month, and feel quite a different man. I send you this for publication for the benefit of humanity, that through my experience others in affliction may be relieved as I have been. Yours truly,

WILLIAM DOTY.

From Sophia M. Holman.

DEAR DR. HENLEY—It is my duty to inform you and the public, what a miraculous effect your Royal Balsam had on my children. Two of them had a very bad cough and cold, I got a bottle of the Royal Balsam, and gave them some at bedtime and some in the morning, and that was all that was needed for their cure. The cough appeared at not hearing them cough again, but so it was. I find if you give it in larger doses it will make the children throw up in an instant, and I think every mother ought to have a bottle of your Royal Balsam in the house, in case a child should get a severe cough which it is a sure remedy, as it acts like magic on children. What I have seen and heard from my neighbors about the Royal Balsam I would sooner dependon it than on any prescription from any physician. I have lost two children within the last year of the same disease, but I had at the time some of the Royal Balsam, and if I had my dear ones would be alive now. I shall always recommend it to all my friends, for I consider it a blessing and Godsend to mankind.

Yours truly, SOPHIA M. HOLMAN.

From Drs. Bell & Parker.

We have sold a great deal of Medicine since we have been in business, and now have fifteen different kinds of Expectorants for sale. But Dr. Henley's Royal Balsam takes the palm from all. In fact, we sell six bottles of Royal Balsam to one of any other kind—still really it seems of no use to keep any other. During our experience we have never seen any medicine that gives the satisfaction the Royal Balsam does, as in person by the results daily coming in from the country of old Chronic cases, when nothing else would remove the dreadful cough they had. I find it is good for Bronchitis and Asthma. We acknowledge it is a pleasure to sell medicine that gives such universal satisfaction.

BELL & PARKER,
Druggists, Oregon City.

From W. F. Barber.

DR. HENLEY—Dear Sir: I had the Asthma for the last four years, so bad that it came near choking me. I tried all the patent medicines recommended for the cure of Asthma without doing me the least good, till I was told to try some of your Royal Balsam, which on betrial afflicted with the same disease has performed wonders. I am using it now for a week and strange to say I have not experienced anything since, and I really believe that I am perfectly cured, anyhow I shall never be without a bottle of the Royal Balsam in the house in case of a similar attack, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to all afflicted with the same disease.

I am Yours truly,
W. F. BARBER.

From J. H. Morril.

DEAR DR. HENLEY—I think it but justice to you that these few lines should be made known to the public, for there is so much humbug going on in patent medicines and quack nostrums now-a-days that I had lost all faith in everything in the shape of medicine. I was affected with what is called Bronchitis for the last thirty years, I coughed and wheezed for an hour at a time; I tried some of the best physicians in the Atlantic States and on this coast, all to no purpose. I could get no relief, and I really thought there was no relief for me in the world. I was induced to try a bottle of your Royal Balsam and it had a most remarkable effect on me, and before I had used up four bottles, the cough left me and I can talk as loud as anybody; pay wife and neighbors don't know what to make of it. My opinion is that if they knew the value of the Royal Balsam there is not a family in the country that would be without it, I think there is not a better medicine in existence for Bronchitis or cough than the Royal Balsam, and I conscientiously recommend to all so afflicted to give it a fair trial.

I remain yours, truly,
J. H. MORRIL.

DR. W. B. DIEFENBACH'S

MEDICAL DISPENSARY!

IN TENDERING MY SERVICES TO THIS PUBLIC, I desire to call the attention of those who suffer from the effects of Private Diseases, such as Primary, Secondary and Tertiary forms. I shall endeavor to effect a permanent cure to those who will follow my precepts and directions, using no Mineral Drugs whatever, as my process is exclusively Botanical or Vegetable.

Onanism or Self-Abuse, another curse of our present generation, the cause of so many morbid symptoms that so often baffle the skill of the physician, will be entirely annihilated by so applying strictly with my method of treatment. Gone shattered by letter or otherwise free, and promptly answered.

Furthermore, Apoplexy, Epilepsy, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Typhoid, Bilious, Intermittent Fevers, etc., Asthma, Incipient Consumption, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, and Female Complaints cured in all their forms whatever, by W. B. DIEFENBACH.

☞ Patients will remember that the above mentioned diseases CANNOT BE CURED WITHOUT INTERNAL REMEDIES, whatever puffy advertisements may assert against it. Address
